Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c, or d:

Success stories often begin with struggle, and Karim's journey is no exception. Born into a poor neighborhood, Karim faced many challenges from a young age. His parents worked multiple jobs just to make ends meet, and there were times when they couldn't even afford basic school supplies. Despite these hardships, He never gave up on his dream of becoming an engineer.

During high school, Karim spent countless hours studying, often using old books and online resources because he couldn't afford tutoring. His grades were excellent, but getting into university was still a huge obstacle due to financial difficulties. Determined not to let poverty define his future, he applied for dozens of scholarships. After many rejections, he finally received a full scholarship. Even at university, life wasn't easy. Karim worked part-time jobs to support his living expenses and continued to face academic and personal challenges. But he stayed focused, motivated by the belief that his hard work would eventually pay off.

Years later, Karim graduated with honors and was offered a job at a top engineering firm. Today, he is a well-known engineer and mentors students who come from similar backgrounds. His journey proves that success is possible with determination, perseverance, and self-belief. Karim's story is a powerful reminder that dreams can come true, no matter how difficult the path may seem. Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c, or d:

Health care is one of the main pillars of a developed society. It goes beyond treating diseases; it focuses on promoting wellness, preventing illness, and improving the quality of life for all individuals. A strong health care system reflects a nation's values, priorities, and sense of responsibility toward its people.

Today, health care, supported by modern technology, has become more complex and more essential than ever. With the rapid spread of new diseases and global health challenges, such as pandemics and pollution, nations must invest heavily in medical research, public hospitals, and health education. Good health care is not a luxury; it is a human right that should be available to everyone, regardless of income or social class.

To further develop and enhance health care, developed societies are now turning to technology driven solutions. Artificial intelligence, telemedicine, and advanced medical equipment have transformed the way doctors diagnose and treat patients. For example, online medical consultations allow people in remote areas to receive expert advice without traveling long distances.

However, despite all the progress, many people around the world still suffer from poor medical services. Lack of funding and low awareness remain serious problems. Therefore, both governments and individuals must work together. In conclusion, the health of a nation determines its strength and future. Investing in health care is not just about curing the sick—it is about creating a society where every person has the chance to live a healthy, dignified, and productive life.
